

Example of scam e-mail received 29th Sept 2005

From: "queen Idi" <queen@hotmail.com>
To: p@.net
Subject: contact you in good faith..... P----

Names deleted for security reasons

Dear P----

I am making this contact to you in good faith and with hope that it will transpire into a more mutual relationship between you and I for now and in future. I am Miss Queen Idi Amin. The Daughter of the late president Idi Amin of Uganda, who died in Saudi Arabia while in exile.

As you may have read from the international media, my fathers investments in various places like France, Switzerland and Belgium were all confiscated and his international accounts frozen by their, Governments. Now that the situation has calmed down, there is the need for my family to invest discretely in various part of the world without our family name mentioned. It is in view of the above, that I make this contact to request if you may like to be my family's financial manager. The fund to be invested is the sum of 28 million U.S.D is in the volt of a Security Company/Firm in Europe, being part of my father's deposits. It is my wish that you invest this fund for us in your country and around the world by engaging into lucrative investments such as buying of shares/stocks in multinational companies, real estate and other non-speculative investment.

Upon the acknowledgement of your response, I will arrange for a face-to-face meeting for you and I. In the meeting we shall sign a working agreement and the fund will be handed over to you for. Investments. Please forward to me your private telephone numbers to enable me discuss with you more confidentially. I will also forward to you my satelite telephone number.

Waiting for your earliest response.
Miss. Queen Idi Amin

